CIA Statement

Hi Morgan,

We saw this story from The Hill today, and in the event The Hill is continuing to report on this matter, please find below an on-the-record statement attributable to CIA Press Secretary Timothy Barrett:

“While Director Haspel did not attend today’s Yemen policy briefing, the Agency has already briefed the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and Congressional leadership on the totality of the compartmented, classified intelligence and will continue to provide updates on this important matter to policymakers and Congress. The notion that anyone told Director Haspel not to attend today’s briefing is false.”

Take care, (b)(3) CIAAct

CIA director flies to Turkey amid growing controversy over Jamal Khashoggi killing

By John Hudson, Shane Harris and Josh Dawsey
October 22 at 6:49 PM

CIA Director Gina Haspel departed for Turkey on Monday amid a growing international uproar over Saudi Arabia's explanation of the killing of journalist Jamal Khashoggi, according to people familiar with the matter.

The visit by the U.S. spy chief comes as Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan in a speech planned for early Tuesday vows to reveal the full extent of what his aides are calling a Saudi-directed murder and attempted coverup.

The arrival of the director suggests an effort by the U.S. intelligence community to assess the information the Turks have, including what Turkish officials have said is audio that captures the killing. Intelligence officials are increasingly skeptical of the Saudi account and have warned the president that the idea that rogue operators flew to Istanbul and killed Khashoggi without the knowledge or consent of Saudi leaders is dubious, a White House official said.

On Monday, Trump told reporters "I am not satisfied with what I've heard" from Saudi Arabia and pledged to get to the bottom of what happened.

"We have top intelligence people in Turkey. We're going to see what we have. I'll know a lot tomorrow," he said. "They'll be coming back either tonight or tomorrow morning. But we have people in Saudi Arabia and in Turkey."

A CIA spokeswoman declined to comment. Other officials spoke about the director's travels on condition of anonymity due to the sensitive nature of the trip.

The chief concern for Washington is that Erdogan will reveal details about Khashoggi's killing that implicate Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, the kingdom's de facto ruler, who has been a key ally for the Trump administration.

On Saturday, the Saudi government admitted that Khashoggi was killed by Saudi agents after he visited the Saudi consulate in Istanbul on October 2. The 33-year-old prince has denied any knowledge of the killing, and his top diplomat, Adel al-Jubeir, called it a tragic "rogue operation" by a group of people acting outside of Mohammed's consent.

A U.S. official who has not heard the audio that purportedly captures the killing but is familiar with its contents said it does not corroborate Saudi Arabia's version of events that Khashoggi's death was the result of a fistfight.

Turkish investigators concluded days ago that Khashoggi was killed and dismembered by a Saudi team dispatched to Istanbul.

At least 12 members of the Saudi team are connected to Saudi security services, and several have links to Mohammed, according to a review of passport records, social media, local media reports and other material.

UPDATE 4-Turkish, Saudi officials diverge on whereabouts of prominent Saudi journalist

- Khashoggi moved to U.S. last year fearing punishment for views
- Fiancée says has not seen him for nearly 24 hours
- Saudi crown prince has cracked down on critics of his policies

(Adds comments from Turkish and Saudi officials, fiancée, UN)

By Sarah Dadouch, Orhan Coskun and Yara Bayoumy

ISTANBUL/WASHINGTON, Oct 3 (Reuters) - Turkish and Saudi authorities gave conflicting accounts on Wednesday about the whereabouts of Saudi commentator Jamal Khashoggi, who moved to Washington last year fearing retribution for his views and has not been seen nearly 30 hours after entering the Saudi consulate in Istanbul.

Khashoggi's Turkish fiancée as well as a close friend contacted by Reuters said he had disappeared after entering the diplomatic mission on Tuesday to secure documentation of his divorce so that he could remarry. The fiancée, who asked not to be named, said she had waited outside the consulate from 1 p.m local time (1000 GMT) and called the police when he had not reappeared.

Turkish presidential spokesman Ibrahim Kalin said Khashoggi was still in the consulate and the government was monitoring the situation.

"Our relevant authorities are in contact and engaged in negotiations with their (Saudi) counterparts. I hope this issue will be resolved with ease," he told reporters.

But a Saudi official denied that Khashoggi was in the consulate.

"Mr. Khashoggi visited the consulate to request paperwork related to his marital status and exited shortly thereafter," the official said. "He is not in the consulate nor in Saudi custody."

His fiancée, who returned to the consulate on Wednesday after waiting for 12 hours the day before, repudiated that claim.

"If this was true, where is he? Where is he? If he went home, no, I went to the house and didn't find him. Where is Jamal?" she told Reuters.

Turkey has had strained relations with Saudi Arabia and other Gulf Arab states since June 2017, when Ankara stood by Qatar in a regional row. Arab states cut trade and diplomatic ties with Qatar over alleged links to terrorism, which Doha denies.

Turkey has also worked with Iran, Saudi Arabia's arch-rival in the Middle East, to try to reduce fighting in northern Syria, and Iranian and Turkish military chiefs exchanged visits last year.

When asked whether the U.S. State Department has sought information from the Saudis and the Turks, an official in Washington said on Tuesday, "We have seen these reports and are seeking more information at this time."

FAMILIAR FACE

Khashoggi, a familiar face on political talk shows on Arab satellite television networks for years, has lived in self-exile in Washington, D.C. for more than a year after he said the authorities had instructed him to stop tweeting.

As a journalist, he interviewed Al Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden several times in Afghanistan and Sudan, and served twice as editor of Al Watan newspaper.

He advised Prince Turki al-Faisal, former Saudi intelligence chief and ambassador to the United States and Britain, and has also been close to billionaire investor Prince Alwaleed bin Talal.

Over the past year, Khashoggi has written regular columns in the Washington Post criticising Saudi Arabia's policies towards Qatar and Canada, the war in Yemen, and a crackdown on dissent and the media and activists which has seen dozens of activists, intellectuals and clerics detained.

"I have left my home, my family and my job, and I am raising my voice," he wrote in September 2017. "To do otherwise would betray those who languish in prison. I can speak when so many cannot."

Ali Shihabi, head of the Arabia Foundation in Washington which regularly supports Saudi policy, expressed concern on Twitter about the reports.

"Jamal and I have not seen eye to eye on many issues but having him go missing like this is awful," he said.

Mohamad Soltan, an Egyptian-American activist who sees Khashoggi regularly in Washington, told Reuters that Khashoggi was in the United States on an O-visa, a temporary residency visa awarded to foreigners "who possess extraordinary ability" in the sciences, arts, education, and other fields and are recognised internationally, and had applied for permanent residency status.

All public protests are banned in Saudi Arabia, as are political parties. Labour unions are illegal, the media are controlled and criticism of the royal family can lead to prison.

Dozens of activists, clerics and intellectuals have been arrested in the past year in a crackdown on potential opponents of the kingdom's absolute rulers. Among them was economist Essam al-Zamil, a friend of Khashoggi's, who was charged this week with joining a terrorist organisation, meeting with foreign diplomats and inciting protests. [nL8N1WH52M]

Scores of businessmen were detained last November in Riyadh's Ritz-Carlton hotel in a separate campaign against corruption, unnerving some foreign investors. Most were released after reaching financial settlements with the authorities.

Thanks.

We are seeing this report in the Daily Sabah, which is wired into the Turkish government it seems and says the Erdogan regime gave Director Haspel and her team audio and other evidence related to the Khashoggi killing.

Any guidance, on the record or off, will be much appreciated.

Good morning,

Earlier today, we had a guest on Al Jazeera English who is a Saudi dissident (Mohammad Al Massari).

He alleged that President Trump knew from Day 2 (October 3) what had happened to Khashoggi in the Consulate, as he was shown a video recording of the murder.

Also, there are reports that the US intelligence agencies knew there were threats to Khashoggi's life.

Can you confirm or clarify?

Thank you for any statement you can provide.

Hi,

Can you provide confirmation or guidance on this report:

WASHINGTON, Dec 3 (Reuters) - CIA Director Gina Haspel will brief U.S. Senate leaders on Tuesday on the killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi, the Wall Street Journal reported on Monday, citing people familiar with the matter.

Many thanks,

Hi Deirdre,

We saw your story today, and in the event you're interested, please find below an on-the-record statement attributable to CIA Press Secretary Timothy Barrett:

“While Director Haspel did not attend today’s Yemen policy briefing, the Agency has already briefed the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and Congressional leadership on the totality of the compartmented, classified intelligence and will continue to provide updates on this important matter to policymakers and Congress. Good morning,

I wanted to reach out to see if the CIA had any comment or response to Sen. Jack Reed's comments below. Thanks for any help you can offer.

The top Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee on Friday accused President Donald Trump of lying about the CIA's report that Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman personally ordered the killing of journalist Jamal Khashoggi.

Trump said Thursday that the CIA "did not come to a conclusion" about the crown prince's involvement in the murder.

"They have feelings certain ways, but they didn't -- I have the report," Trump said.

When asked if the President was lying about the CIA's conclusion, Rhode Island Democratic Sen. Jack Reed said, "Yes. The CIA concluded that the crown prince of Saudi Arabia was directly involved in the assassination of Khashoggi."

Hi - I just called and left msg for [redacted] My query is simple, is there a background comment or no comment or steer of any kind with regard to this paragraph that Washington Post published in a story posted on its website Tuesday night:

Before Khashoggi's disappearance, U.S. intelligence intercepted communications of Saudi officials discussing a plan to capture him, according to a person familiar with the information. The Saudis wanted to lure Khashoggi back to Saudi Arabia and lay hands on him there, this person said. It was not clear whether the Saudis intended to arrest and interrogate Khashoggi or to kill him, or if the United States warned Khashoggi that he was a target, this person said.

(b)(6) (b)(6) hope all is well. Good to see you briefly at the Worldwide Threat hearing. I've always wondered why there isn't also a Worldwide Opportunities hearing... :)

I'm writing because we are doing a follow-up piece that concerns the CIA assessment re MbS' role in Jamal Khashoggi's death. After our December 1 story, the Saudi Public Prosecutors' office commissioned a third-party firm to do a forensic examination of MbS top aide Saud al-Qahtani's phone..

That examination found 11 WhatsApp messages from MbS to Qahtani, and 15 of them from Qahtani to MbS. None of them concerned Jamal Khashoggi.

The 11 messages, as I reported, were only one aspect of the broader CIA assessment. I know you haven't commented on the assessment at all, but since our story mentions the agency and its analysis, wanted to offer you the chance to weigh in.

I am a writer for The New Yorker. I cover foreign policy.

I have dealt with the agency for decades, but not in several months.

I am working on two stories for which I'd be grateful for guidance :

- 1) The Khashoggi case. (I had known him for decades.) I've written several pieces already about Jamal as well as Saudi Arabia.
- 2) The building tensions between Iran and Israel playing out in Syria. I spent part of this month on the Golan Heights with the Israeli Defense Force. I also interviewed the Iranian president and his foreign minister. And I interviewed the top Russian official on the Middle East, Deputy Foreign Minister Mikhail Bogdanov for the story.

I have depth already on both stories but I'm always interested in hearing the perspective of the U.S. intelligence community. I am filing every couple of days on the Saudi story, so it has the greatest urgency, especially with Director Haspel's visit to Turkey.

I can be reached at the contacts below. I would be grateful for any guidance your office can provide as either story develops or if the CIA does briefings for the press.

Thank you for your attention.

With regards, Robin Wright

Hello,

My name is Stephanie Kirchgaessner and I'm an investigative reporter with the Guardian newspaper here in Washington.

I am emailing you some questions for a story we are working on and intend to publish regarding Jamal Khashoggi and US intelligence in the months preceding his murder.

Specifically, we have been given evidence that strongly suggests that a senior US diplomatic official confronted Saudi officials (in Saudi) in February 2018 and indicated to them that US officials were aware of a plan by Saudi Arabia to seek to "repatriate" Jamal Khashoggi back to Saudi Arabia from his home in the US. Saudi officials were told in the confrontation that any such move - essentially to kidnapp Khashoggi, or otherwise force his return to Saudi Arabia - would disrupt the US-Saudi relationship.

The message that was received by the Saudi officials, and was then passed on to Saudi officials here in Washington, based on information that has been leaked to us, is that there was a call to "halt" the operations here in the US.

My questions are: can you offer us any confirmation that the US was aware of a plan dating back to February 2018 by Saudi officials to "repatriate" Khashoggi?

Can you give any insight into the nature of that information, how it was obtained, and how far the Saudis were in executing their alleged plan on US soil?

As far as you know, did the CIA pass this or any similar information on to the US State Department, which took over plans to communicate a message to the Saudis that they needed to stop?

I know this is sensitive but we are seeking as many details as we can about this apparently extraordinary intervention by US officials months before Khashoggi was murdered at the Saudi consulate in Turkey.

My phone number is (b)(6) and I am happy to talk by phone or have a meeting. Thanks, Stephanie

Hi (b)(6)

I think I know the answer, but just running this by:

WaPo

CIA Director Gina Haspel listened to audio purportedly capturing the interrogation and killing of journalist Jamal Khashoggi, giving a key member of President Trump's Cabinet access to the evidence used by Turkey to accuse Saudi Arabia of premeditated murder.

Haspel, who departed for a secret trip to Turkey on Monday, heard the audio during her visit, according to people familiar with her meetings.

President Trump, who has made Saudi Arabia a central pillar of his Middle East strategy, has grown increasingly skeptical of the kingdom's claim that Khashoggi's death was a "rogue operation" that occurred after a fistfight broke out in the Saudi Consulate in Istanbul on Oct. 2.

Thanks.
